

Forestry Wood Products

Traditionally forestry has been the economic mainstay of the area.

Today, forestry is still a key component of the Robson Valley economy with woodlot owners and community forests taking advantage of the fibre supply here as well as the effective shipping network.

It is up to us to be good stewards of the land. We work together to have fresh air, clean water, abundant wildlife and ample recreational opportunities. We collaborate with nature on managing our forests as well as restoring capabilities lost over the years.

Community Forests have been developed as a strategy to benefit the entire community. This creates long-term community economic development and increased self-reliance for rural communities. Community Forests are different from other tenures because they are managed by the community, for the benefit of the community.

The land is the “heartbeat” of the Robson Valley Region. Live and work where you can reap the benefits of rural life with endless opportunities to contribute and be a vital part of the community. A work-life balance can truly be achieved with a greater quality of life.
